

Start Your College Education in High School

Take Concurrent Enrollment Classes at Ellsworth Community College

A Wise Investment

When you take college classes while still in high school, your school picks up the tab for your college costs. Every class you take in high school subtracts from your future student loans, making college more affordable!

Graduate Early

The more college classes you take at NO cost to you while in high school the more it will save you while earning your degree. It also allows you to either explore the field you are interested in or jump right into the classes you know you will need for your major.

Experience College Life

When you take college courses as a high school student YOU ARE a college student at ECC too. That means that all academic resources are available to you, college facilities and even college student activities. Concurrent enrollement courses are a great way to find out what college will be like as a full-time student.
